She said she went to court yesterday but thought it was a very long time to have to wait. I explained that  would get to give his evidence early which she was very relieved about. She said she didn't want him to have to live with the memories for that long and hopes he can move towards getting his life back together after he gives evidence.

I asked how he was going and she said he is still seeing a psychologist every week but is doing well considering.

Told her to call with any questions but that I would call with any dates.
