Dear John,

The name of the complainant we met together in Devonport is BYH. His phone number is REDACTED REDACTED was only at the first court appearance where the names were not read out, so I have no independent confirmation that BYH's was one of those that Hawkins admitted to? However I see no reason for BYH to lie, and your apology is not in writing anyway. Even in the extreme case he did lie, I see no lasting damage done at all by apologising, because your apology is not in writing anyway. On the other hand I do see the potential for lasting damage done if you do not ring him soon. Delay is damaging your credibility. Therefore I advise the best option is ringing him very soon. His wife's name is RED. His children are REDAC and REDA.

You may remember he was raped when staying with Hawkins, having run away from home when his father had a brain tumor and was violent.

Some ideas if you want them. You could start off with 'We don't yet have any official list of those Hawkins admitted he abused, but Beryl tells me that your was one of the ones that Hawkins admitted to?'

You could then apologise;

stress this should never have happened, thank him on behalf of the church for being brave enough to bring this criminal behaviour to light.

that this was a gift to other victims as well, because it confirmed their stories.

that you recognise how damaging this criminal behaviour was and that you and your family have a paid a very high price for this.

and perhaps some compliment eg "despite all the things you are up against, [he has big health issues] can I compliment you on how you are tackling things.

an invitation to apply for grant if he wishes eg 'we are inviting all those whose case was established through Hawkins admissions in court, to apply for a grant under the pastoral support and assistance scheme.
