Mr & Mrs REDACTED

REDACTED

Dear REDACTED

Thank you for coming to see me last Thursday. As I said then, I am sorry about the circumstances of our meeting, but pleased to have met you.

I faxed your letter to Mr O'Callaghan that day and also informed him that you would be sending further information and that you would be happy to co-operate with the Inquiry in any way required.

Should you change your mind about pastoral care, I could ask Archdeacon Richard Gowty at Buderim to assist. I know he is most helpful in these circumstances. Should you change your mind about the counselling, I could contact Professor Embleton or The Reverend Libby Crossman at Caloundra.

I do hope that knowing you have done all that you can will help you both, and to continue to recover from this sad and regrettable set of circumstances. BYB

Be assured that if there is any way that we can be of assistance, we would be glad to help. I will be speaking with the Archbishop about your visit and information on his return.

Yours sincerely

Jacqueline Kearney
Assistant to Archbishop Phillip Aspinall
