TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

In 1971 I appointed Mr. Gilbert Case as Head of English at Brisbane Grammar School and, for eight years, he gave outstanding service to this school in that capacity.

His relationships with his colleagues were excellent and I know that all who worked with him in the English Department respected his knowledge of his subject, his outstanding ability as a teacher, his organizational and administrative capacities and his capacity to enthuse students, particularly in the area of English Literature.

In the wider sphere of education, he made many outstanding contributions to the English Teachers' Association, both at state and national level, and also to the Board of Secondary School Studies. As Deputy Chairman of that Board, I have been in a good position to judge the quality of the services he gave.

As his Headmaster, I can testify that he gave distinguished and loyal service to Brisbane Grammar School.

Since his appointment as Headmaster of St. Paul's School, Brisbane, he has continued his service to education in general by serving as Vice-President of the Association of Independent Schools of Queensland and his qualities as an educationist have recently been recognized by his colleagues in his election as the inaugural Chairman of the Queensland Branch of the Association of Heads of Independent Schools of Australia.

I have no doubt that Gilbert Case will continue to contribute to education in the outstanding manner which has been the mark of his career to this stage and I should be happy to speak further on his behalf if asked to do so.
