Dear Susan,

Claude Hamam

Your client's concession at the interview on 17 June 2003 that he had fabricated his earlier evidence in relation to vital matters in the selection process when Brian Perkins was appointed to the school has placed his credibility at large in issue.

In light of that, my client is concerned to know whether Claude still adheres to what he told us about the various files which he kept (in particular the personnel file for Brian Perkins and the red file) and their whereabouts when he last saw them.

My client requires Claude to reflect on his evidence in relation to the files and to respond in writing as to: -

- whether he took any of those files with him when he left the school;
- whether he removed any of those files from the school while he was the Principal;
- whether he has any of them in his custody or control;
- if not, whether he knows where they can be located; and
- whether, if he is aware that they cannot now be located, they have been destroyed or otherwise removed (and, if so, by whom and in what manner).

My client provides this opportunity to your client to give a frank response either by way of affirmation of his previous evidence or as to any alternative evidence in relation to those files.

I would appreciate your client's written response within the next seven days.

Yours faithfully,

Tony Fuller
