Richard,
Thank you for the copy.

Our problem is that on advice from the hospital we told a complainant that we could not pursue his matter because the accused was unfit to be questioned.

The complainant's mother subsequently visited the accused, as she apparently does from time to time, and unaware of the problems allegedly experienced by her son, later remarked to her son about her visit. She spoke as if the accused was very much on the ball, and knew clearly what was going on around him. All we want is for someone to say yes he can, or no he cannot be reasonably offered the choice of meeting or not meeting an assessor, in reference to the complaint against him.
