Good morning Ms CJO ,

Thank you for allowing me to chat to you last night, it was nice to finally get a chance to speak with you. An important part of how I manage this issue, is to respect privacy requirements, so I decided it was best I wait until I could confirm you were happy for me to contact you. I then only received your contact details yesterday evening.

My highest priority is that CJE receives all the support she requires to deal with this matter, in what is a very important year in her life.

I will provide you with information later today in relation to medical support.

When providing written information you need, I will do this primarily via email unless you would like anything more formal.

Below are my office details and my contact number after hours is [REDACTED]. Please feel free to contact me at any stage should you have any questions or if you simply want to chat about any of the matters related to our support to you and your family.

Regards,

Jac
