

Childcare Philosophy

Children are individuals with unique experiences. Their individual strengths, needs and interests will be provided for to increase their self esteem, self awareness and independence.

A flexible program based on the importance of middle childhood strengths, interests and needs of children will be implemented and revised regularly, to provide quality care and activities in an informal and non stressful environment.

A safe, secure and healthy environment where children can interact with peers and caregivers based on respect and consideration.

Discipline techniques which encourage preferred behavior.

A service that is available and accessible to all children, encouraging integration of special need students and multicultural diversity.

Involvement of all families and community will be Welcomed and encouraged with open communication being the basis of developing a partnership between the home and the service. Including parents and guardians in decision making regarding their children's welfare and development.

Each family is unique in its culture, customs, language and beliefs.

Staff will be encouraged to use their individual strengths, interests and experiences, as well as develop further professionally. They will be encouraged to accept and adhere to the "Code of Practice".
