A SYDNEY doctor accused of indecently assaulting boys more than 30 years ago under the guise of needing a sample of their semen has denied any sexual misconduct.

Giving evidence in the NSW District Court, the elderly man said he never behaved inappropriately in a sexual way towards any of the five complainants.

The unnamed man has been charged with 11 counts of indecent assault of the boys who were aged 14 to 15 between 1975 and 1981.

Yesterday the judge directed the jury to find him not guilty of one charge.

The doctor's denied having masturbated any of the boys or telling them to do it and said if a young teenager did get an erection during an examination he would tell them it was normal and not to worry about it.

The trial is continuing.
