many of them have now stabilized and are living normal, happy lives. This change and healing would never have taken place if people had said ~ so much time has elapsed since the war and their homecoming! As for legal implications anybody who had really wanted to follow that path would have done so before now! So I believe those two reasons to be invalid and besides that I believe we should all move to Peter walking on the water until he sank with lack of faith and trust in Jesus. We must move with the Spirit and the Spirit is telling me in no uncertain

Dear Bishop Mulkearns,
I write to acknowledge your letter of 7-3-90. I must say at the outset that I was extremely disappointed with your decision and felt that the difficulties you allude to are not, in this situation valid. The time factor is invalid as the hurt will never dissipate until healing has begun ~ I refer you to the Vietnam Veterans and the fact that 10 years had elapsed before action was taken to alleviate their war wounds. So
