

2.12.98

It was mid-way when I was given some information by Support worker Paul Major.

This information was given to me innocently by Paul, as he had no idea of the issue at hand, during a weekly debriefing meeting with me.

Paul said to me that fellow Support worker John O'Connor had told him the he had left a job in Melbourne due to accusations of child abuse.

I didn't say anything to Paul about it but I spoke with Melissa Edwards as soon as I finished the meeting with Paul. Melissa asked me to repeat what I had been told to Manager Dorothy Williams.

I did this and she responded by telling me not to say anything to anyone. That was the last I heard about the information that I had passed on.

[signature]

Evan Munroe