Mr Ken Sandilands.

In our contact with him it would seem important to avoid, by innuendo, ~~the~~ seeming to impute any culpability on his part: at the moment the situation is one of no case, or at least no case proven. (Had the contrary been so in the past, appropriate action would of course have been taken.) However, in the context of past ripples, it is very important to advise that whilst it would <sup>desire & hope</sup> to defend him to the hilt, any appearances of imprudent relationships would ~~make our~~ <sup>make our</sup> ~~situation~~ difficult to defend him to the extent we would like. Such would be an untenable situation for us, as he would ~~not~~ appreciate. So the loving, but firm request is to
