She has been an inpatient for 4 months, the aim of the long term admission was so she could continue psychiatric treatment away from the stresses of the home environment. Weekend leave was regular and frequently resulted in many "attacks" though she was fairly stable during her stay in hospital. ^{Her mother's latest} pregnancy & subsequent delivery were seen as stressful situations where she would be completely ⁱⁿ with the unborn child and it was felt that it would be more beneficial for her to remain in hospital until the ^{pregnancy} was over. During her admission there was some progress in resolving her problems, but frequent follow-up will be required to continue therapy. |

SUMMARY AND INTERPRETATION 12 year old girl with chronic asthma. It is felt that her "attacks" are often related to physical. The relief obtained by diluent pumps whilst an inpatient or afterwards as an out patient. Her long stay was partly due to her
