Dear Simon

I have been waiting patiently for two letters from you (there would be a lot more), but I know I will not receive them – especially the answer concerning Sutherland blatantly telling a witness that I was 'mentally ill', which was completely out of line.

I have been advised to complain about Sutherland to the Law Society.

(It's a waste of time having Peter Scanlan in charge of the Complaints Department. With all due respect, he may as well be the bloody tea lady)

Simon, I am not interested in what you do any more. I have my own business to attend too.

Because I don't know what you are doing or where you are heading or what you are thinking I would like you to release me from my contract as from this day so I can move along and continue my promise to keep fighting the Anglican Church – which I have been doing for quite a while now – and getting results.

I do not want you or any person from Nicol Robinson Halletts acting on my behalf from this day Monday June 4, 2007.

Thanks for your help in this compensation claim. It has been a battle. You have tried the best you could and you lost, and we have to accept that.

Accepting the 'compassion money' that Comben and his band of cheating men offered, would be a burden on my mind for the rest of my life. I would rather eat the paint off the wall than take what I call the 'shut your fucking mouth' money.

Please send me the bill so we can wrap this up.

P.S. Simon, I sort of 'kicked' this claim off and do you know that you haven't spoken to me on the phone for over 12 bloody months. Plus, I thought you would have sent a letter of 'condolences' to me and CA saying you kicked arse and done your best – but no – oh no – you just went on to the next case, seemingly, without a damn in the world. It's sad. Good luck in your latest venture.

Kind regards,

Richard Champion
