Dear John,

At my meeting with Joan Isaacs on April 20 1999, I offered that the Church would pay for ten (10) counselling sessions and then review the situation. Joan said, at the meeting, that she did not need to see a counsellor on a regular basis.

The account Joan has submitted for counselling expenses should be met.

In replying to her letter, I would make the point that the Church's offer was what I had said at our meeting last year.

Regarding her claim for compensation, she did raise this matter at the meeting. This was not her primary concern but she was hurt by what happened to her and she wanted the Church to feel some of that hurt through compensation payment.

I trust this information is of some use to you.

Regards,

Father Adrian G Farrelly JCD
