

16. Sadly my mum passed away from her illness in 1995. She had suspended the medical treatment she was having at that time in order to come to Melbourne to assist me. I have always worried that this had an adverse effect on her health and meant that the treatment was less effective. I often wonder if she would have lived without the interruption to her treatment and the stress of what happened at the Yeshivah and the flow on impact it had on me. I went through a period of dealing with issues of anger and I became very withdrawn after we returned REDACTED At the very least her last years would have been happier and easier were it not for the events at the Yeshivah.
