PRIVATE AND CONFIDENTIAL

Dear Geoff and Kevin,

So - EAG, EAE are not paying the term's fees for term 2 and term 3 last year and have justified this because of claims the School failed in its duty of care toward their son, CLC

I do not believe we did fail and have said as much several times to EAG ;EAE

About $20K is involved. Do we put this in the hands of our collectors or do we let it go?

If we let it go, there is no guarantee they will still not seek to sue us.

I also feel they are being totally unreasonable in their interpretation of the events.

But - I'm not sure if putting in the hands of collection wouldn't backfire and cost us more time and angst than it is worth.

We now need to decide how to progress this matter.

Thoughts?
